

Restriction on the number of random effects in the model

Generally, you should be able to have p random coefficients with p observations. You cannot have any more, as the cross product of the level-1 design matrix would be of insufficient rank, and therefore unusable. It is not uncommon for a data set with a maximum of p observations per group to have less than p observations in some groups.